THE WORLD OF WOMEN

TIE INTO STYLE WITH COTTON STRING

Cotton string knitted things take precedence over all other types of sports things for chic this summer. A neat two-piece pale pink sports suit (left) knitted of cotton string is perfect for summer days. The skirt has slenderizing lines. The blouse has little puffed sleeves and the now bag neckling that pull up and then the string ties in a bow. For the girl who likes her things tailored, here (right) is a three-piece suit cotton string, in yellow. The skirt and short jacket are a diagonal lace weave, the round-necked pullover sweater another lace stitch. The scarf has a touch of brown in it. So has the hat. The crocheted gloves have brown stitchings in them.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children have so few defences they resort to the ones they know. They slap someone because they have no other reply.

Little vulgarisms, yes, but mostly because they lack the finesse of the adult.

This is not excusing the mean or cruel child. A certain amount of abuse among children is purely deliberate and calculated. Yet the really sadistic child is more or less rare, and the fact remains that when he inflicts pain or insult his motives are usually not so base as we think.

One time I saw a group of children starting out for a walk. One of the boys had a balloon stick or whip which had lost its blimp and became, instead an innocent wand, a weapon of attack.

Fascinating Weapon

He was interested in that new possession, not new but fascinatingly changed. He flicked the tops off weeds and daisies and cracked at tree trunks and fences.

Suddenly he turned and struck another boy across the face. The boy put his hand up and yelled. Instantly a well arose and we could all see the narrow escape his eyes had had.

The assaulter's mother was horrified. She was amazed, she was heartbroken. There had been no trouble between them that she knew of. Yet there was her 6-year-old darling turning Legree and being quite casual and unconcerned about it.

What had happened? We talked it over. "I think," said I, "that Bertie needs to be taught how a whip hurts. He was out on an experimental tour and striking Tom was merely another experiment. I don't think he meant it for his face. Give him a little cut or two with the whip on his legs, not to punish him, but to show him that he must never do such a thing again. Pain is something he cannot inflict."

Now this is not in the least related to defence. We will go back to that.

Ignorant of Pain

When some children are offended, or reproved, or hurt, they strike back instead of answering. Why? Because just about the hardest thing in the world for some children is lucidly explaining "why" such and such a thing happened. They are accused by another child and out goes the hand. When anything unfair occurs their tongues suddenly fall them. At best they haven't the right words to put things straight. Hands are easier.

Not Necessarily "Wicked"

I shouldn't tolerate this for a minute, of course, but it is interesting because our course of procedure in correcting a fault should depend on the motive behind what the child does.

It isn't wise or right to jump to the conclusion that our child is naturally mean and cruel. He must be taught never to inflict pain on either a person or an animal, but he need not be told that he is a hopelessly wicked person.

Children are elemental. They protect themselves as best they know how. They are even aggressively cruel at times. But it never hurts to try to understand.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

Home Beauty Aids

By Alicia Hart.

If you can't afford the luxury of a well-stocked beauty cabinet look to your kitchen cupboard.

It is wonderful if you can afford to keep well supplied with the right cosmetics which your skin needs but, if you can't, spend no time sorrowing for there are many beauty aids which cost practically nothing.

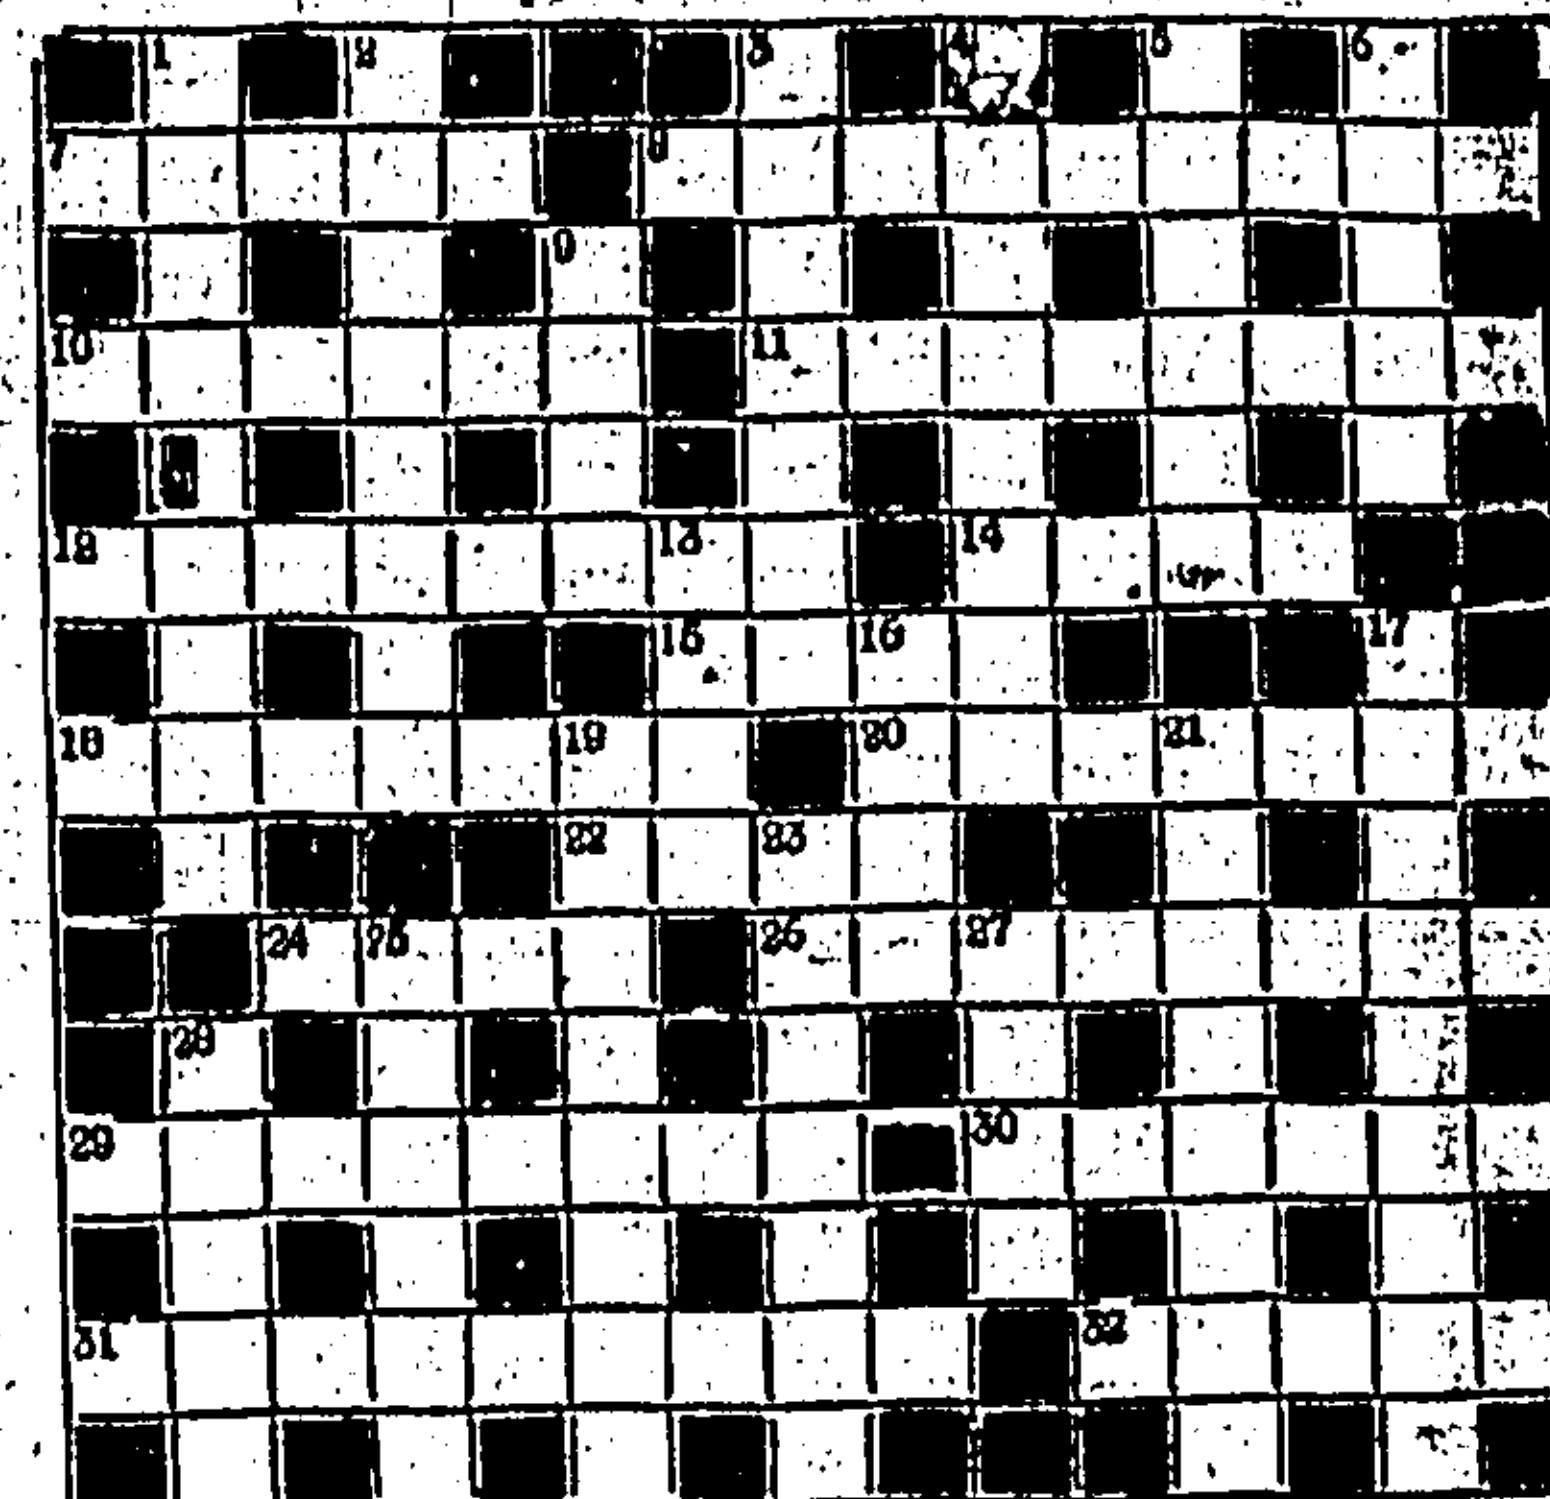

What do you think Cleopatra did when she felt her fair skin needed a little bleach to bring out its best qualities? I think she might have used sour milk, the juice of strawberries or lemons or even a grain moistened in water.

One of the best bleaches and skin whiteners under the sun is plain buttermilk. Wash your face, neck, arms and hands with it.

Oatmeal, the kind you use for breakfast cereal, uncooked and moistened with a little water is grand for the skin. You simply make a thick paste of it, apply the mixture to your face and neck, allow it to dry while you lie down to rest for twenty minutes, wash it off and you'll be surprised how much clearer and softer your skin has become during the process.

There is much to be said for hot water and lemon juice when it comes to talking of lovely complexions. Women are learning that the way to have a complexion that is the envy of everyone is to drink 2 full glasses of water into which the juice of one lemon has been squeezed upon arising each morning.

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL
MCCELLIOT

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONNIE O'DARE is secretly enraged to see DAN CARDIGAN, heir to a local fortune, who does not want his parents to know of the engagement because they oppose the marriage, Monnie and Dan plan to elope in January when he will come into some money of his own.

Dan is jealous of CHARLES EUSTACE, handsome newcomer who shows Monnie marked attention. BILL O'DARE is engaged to ANOIE GILLEN whose divorce is still pending. MISS O'DARE is much distressed because of this situation.

CHAPTER XXI

Angie stammered, "Pleased to—," and then, thinking better of it, went on hurriedly, "Bill's told me a lot about you."

Mrs. O'Dare said, "I'm glad he brought you. We've been wanting to meet you." She smiled to show she meant it and, in spite of the sinking of her heart, was glad to discover that Bill's girl was, as Kay had described her, "not a bad sort." If her bright sweater fitted the curves of her rounded figure a trifle too candidly, still the big eyes framed in mascaraed lashes had a likeable honesty about them. All Belvedere—that is all that part of it which knew the O'Dares well enough to observe their comings and goings—would gossip that night about Angie's call on Bill's mother. "What's the world coming to?" old ladies would ask, with upraised hands. "Time was when that sort of woman was shown the door."

No, the trouble was, Mrs. O'Dare reflected, that Angie wasn't what the old ladies meant when they said "that sort of woman." Angie was fundamentally good. She had been trapped by nature into an unwise marriage. Now, at 21, she was struggling to get out of that trap. It was injudicious—surely nothing more—of her and Bill to have "got engaged," as they naively put it, before Angie's divorce was final. But then people did that kind of thing nowadays.

The conversation languished. Angie admired the ferns in the hanging pots, admired the burst of phlox under the windows. Unconsciously, under her chatter, she was observing Bill's mother, wondering what was behind all this apparent simplicity and friendliness. Poor Angie, she wasn't much used to kindness! She was a bit suspicious of it.

"I made some iced tea, Bill. You bring it in—and the cookies from the pantry," his mother commanded, conscious of her son's fidgeting attention.

The quiet of Denny, street on Sunday afternoon brooded over everything and when the two women were alone together silence fell like a blanket on both.

Mrs. O'Dare broke it, "Bill tells me you plan to be married as soon as—the divorce goes through."

Angie stared at her, with just a hint of trepidation. "Yes, that's what we were thinking."

"When—when will that be?" Mrs. O'Dare could not quite keep a tremor of anxiety out of her tone.

Angie stared at the curtains, fluttering in the breeze.

"We don't exactly know," she said, almost sullenly. "Stan is seeing to things. He's got a lawyer in the city. He'll let me know."

"I see," Mrs. O'Dare considered this. "I think—somehow I have the feeling you'd be better off starting in some new place," she said bravely. "This is such a small place. You know how people are—"

Angie winked suddenly. She hadn't expected this reception. Unconsciously she had braced herself for tears, reproaches, pleas. She had expected to be looked over coldly, snubbed, dismissed. This quiet little woman with the graying chestnut hair and fine eyes seemed actually to be accepting her.

She gulped. "Yes'm—I mean certainly, Mrs. O'Dare. That's what I was telling Bill only the other day. He doesn't exactly see it my way." Her defences down, she plunged forward, voluble, excited. Bill and she could get a little flat in the city. She could get another job—she always did—and there were so many big garages there. Bill would be sure to find work. She forgot to be careful of her grammar.

"She does love him," the mother thought. "She's really a good little thing. If only— Even in her own mind she couldn't finish the sentence. If only Angie weren't so palpably the product of the wrong sort of training, or rather the lack of training, her rebellious heart cried out! Well, it couldn't be helped. You didn't choose your son's wife. In Mrs. O'Dare's simple code, you made the best of it."

Bill came back in, awkwardly balancing a tray. He glanced anxiously from Angie to his mother, relieved at what he saw.

"I'll have to be taking Angie back now, mother," he said after an interval, glancing at his watch. "I promised Harnett to be back at 6. He's got to drive his wife to the Springs."

He was relieved, she could see, that everything had passed off so smoothly. Poor boy, he had probably dreaded the ordeal! She kissed him, smoothing his roughened fair hair. Poor Bill, toll-hardened at 22, anxious, in love with the wrong girl! Well, it couldn't be helped. She sighed, watching the flash of Angie's sweater through the greenery.

She would do the best she could. She simply would not think what the loss of Bill's earnings would mean to the little family. Kay was beginning to help now. That meant a lot. And poor Monnie! Well, there was no use looking ahead, borrowing trouble. You had to live each day as it came it was the only way.

She went about, straightening cushions, picking up glasses. Kay came in, hair dripping wet from a swim. She had gone with Rissy down to the river.

"Well?" Kay challenged her. "They've just gone." Mrs. O'Dare sat down, sighing. "She's really a good little thing, Kay. Only so—so—," she hesitated for a word.

"Ordinary," Kay finished the sentence for her.

"Yes," Bill's mother shrugged her shoulders. "It shouldn't matter, I suppose, what she does with the language, but somehow it does."

"Of course it does. Silly to pretend it doesn't," said practical Kay. "We're all a little snobbish, really. What I can't understand is why she doesn't bore Bill to tears. He's smart, really. Likes to read and he's always been so ambitious."

"I know. That's the sad part. In two years—or less perhaps—I'm afraid Bill will be wondering what he ever saw in Angie. You can't make him understand now. No use trying."

"Not a bit in the world," Kay glanced at herself in the mirror.

Her voice sounded grown up. Mrs. O'Dare reflected. Something had happened to Kay this summer. She refused to go back to high school, since Charles Eustace had managed to get this post at the library for her. Kay was old for her age. She would have been in her final year at school but she proposed instead to go to night sessions and study when she could in the daytime.

"I'm old enough to start helping," she had said practically. Last year at this time Kay would have raged and stormed at Bill for having dared to shrink his responsibility.

She gave her sick golden locks a final pat and turned to smile at her parent. "Well, that's that!" she observed.

"That's that!" Her mother echoed dryly.

Kay rushed upstairs to change her dress. She was invited to Dr. Waterman's house for tea. There would be older people there, Kay thought, but that wouldn't really matter. They were going to talk over plans for some amateur theatricals to be put on before Christmas. Kay was terribly excited. The Waterman's house was cited. The doctor's uncle. Not Geraldine Cardigan had ever been even invited there. Sandra was asked occasionally when Lansing, the young son of the house, was home from college.

Kay smiled at herself in the mirror, remembering how stunned Rissy had been when she had told her about the invitation—to Sunday night supper, of all things. Sunday night supper meant you belonged to the inner circle in Belvedere society.

"But they'll all be as old as Methusalem," Rissy had said, pretending she thought it was a terrible bore. Rissy had made her voice very disdainful. "Better call them up and say you can't come. Johnny Link's coming over in his Chevy and he'll get a boy for you. Come along," Rissy coaxed.

Kay had shrugged her shoulders, quite in the grand manner. Rolling through the country lanes with a raw youth's arms around her seemed positively revolting.

"No, thanks," she had said distinctly. Rissy had tossed her head and turned away.

Kay dressed with care, making her hair a demure frame for her

London.
"English girls are not so hardy as girls of other countries," declared Mrs. Mark Kerr, Comhave almost lost the use of their legs by riding in 'buses and cars.'"

Not every one agrees with Mrs.
Kerr. A booking clerk at one of the

SMALL-POX IN JAPAN.

EPIDEMIC MISTAKEN FOR CHICKENPOX.

Tokyo, June 30.
About a million persons in Tokyo have been compulsorily vaccinated within the last few days as a result of an outbreak of small-pox.

The epidemic was first mistaken for chicken-pox, which fact explains the alarming increase in cases, which now number 150. Two elementary schools have been closed as a precaution.

The prescription for sundown

At sundown, after hard work or strenuous exercise, the most cooling and refreshing prescription is a long glass of White Horse Whisky with cold soda.

White Horse dispels fatigue and revives flagging energies. Its restorative powers and its value as an aid to digestion are well known to sportsmen both at home and overseas.

OXFORD MOVEMENT CENTENARY

Celebrations to be Held Next Month

Ten thousand delegates from all parts of the world are expected in London for the forthcoming centenary celebrations of the Oxford Movement and the Catholic Revival in the Church of England.

It was an "assize" sermon, preached before judges at Oxford by John Keble on July 14, 1833, which in itself founded the movement, and now, exactly 100 years later, on Friday, July 14, as part of the celebrations another sermon is to be delivered at Oxford.

The preacher will be a nameless monk. At the offices of the Anglo-Catholic Congress the News Chronicle was informed that this is the only service during the celebrations for which arrangements have been made by the B.B.C. for a broadcast. It is to take place at noon.

The monk is a member of one of the Anglo-Catholic orders, and it has been decided that his name shall neither be announced beforehand nor published subsequently.

30,000 EXPECTED.

Two great open-air services in London are to be outstanding features in the celebrations. Both are to take place in the Stadium—the great centre for dog racing—at the White City, Shepherd's Bush. The Bishop of London (Dr. Winnington Ingram) is to be present at each service. Attendances of at least 30,000 are expected.

No seats will be placed on the dog track. Here the clergy and massed choirs will assemble, and a magnificent altar, 21ft. wide and nearly 35ft high, is to be set up. From this altar, on the following Sunday, July 16, High Mass will be celebrated by the Bishop of Colombo (Dr. Carpenter-Garnier).

TWO PILGRIMAGES.

Meetings will also be held at the Albert Hall from July 10 to 15. Other arrangements include open-air High Mass at Oxford, and a procession to the tomb of Edward Bouverie Pusey and a service in Winchester Cathedral, followed by a pilgrimage to the tomb of John Keble at Hursley.

A PRE-HISTORIC DAGGER

ANCIENT SECRET REVEALED

A Bronze dagger found by Sir Flinders Petrie during excavations on the site of the 6,000-year-old city of Gaza in Palestine—in the ancient city of Abraham has laid bare another secret of the world's most ancient civilisation. Sir Flinders, who spent his 80th birthday travelling across France on his return from Palestine, allowed a reporter to handle the dagger at his home in Hampstead. The edge is rusted with age, and the weapon is veined with a finely engraved raised ribbing.

A RIDDLE OF HISTORY.

This important discovery has enabled Sir Flinders to establish the identity of the race which founded the seventh and eighth Egyptian dynasties, thus solving a riddle of history which has puzzled archaeologists for hundreds of years.

"We discovered the dagger," Sir Flinders told the reporter, "when we uncovered the earliest of the five palaces at Gaza."

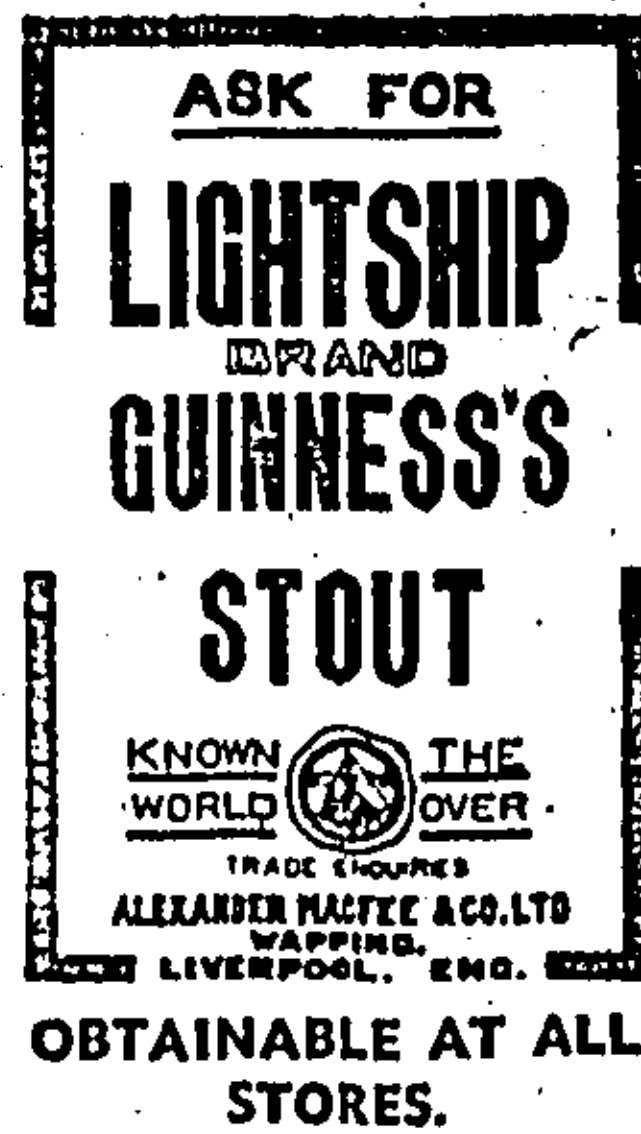

"It resembled work of the Copper Age men—the people who came after Neolithic times—but when I read of a report of a discovery in the Caspian region I hit upon the secret."

"These people—one of the six aces to conquer Egypt—came from the Caspian shores, and the dagger shows their culture in arts.

"Since veined daggers were hitherto only known in the Caucasus, this find constitutes another link connecting the Caspian region with the Hyksos civilisation, which probably dominated Egypt for seven centuries, founding the Seventh Egyptian Dynasty of about 3,000 B.C. after dispossessing the people of the Copper Age."

Other discoveries made by Sir Flinders and the British School of Archaeology in Egypt during the fourth season of excavations at Gaza were two gold pins used for fastening ladies' gowns and a tomb of an Egyptian Governor, with the big gold ring of Tutankhamen, which added 50 years to the Egyptian occupation in Palestine.

THE CURRENCY BATTLE

Britain is placed in an embarrassing position by the currency battle still raging at the World Economic Conference. The circumstances seem likely to compel her to a decision, a choice between throwing her weight on the side of America or in behalf of the gold-standard countries of Europe. Either event may cause an irreparable rupture and there seems no likelihood of discovering a satisfactory middle course. Britain is anxious not to antagonise the United States, with which country she is more or less pledged to collaborate both at the economic conference and the disarmament conference. At the same time, it is obvious that giving offence to Europe by refusing to consider the very logical demand of the Continent for stable exchanges as a condition of economic recovery may damage the last vestiges of hope for European political stability. The risk is one we can ill-afford to take, but in the circumstances, there seems to be only one sound basis for Britain's decision, the vital interests of British industry and commerce. It seems useless to expect anything in the way of a largely-conceived multilateral agreement designed to promote the new world order for which we look hopefully but in vain. The Conference, in less than three weeks, has developed into a struggle of conflicting interests and while such a spirit dominates, while better things remain remote, we must take things as we find them and act accordingly. It is already obvious that America is not giving anything away to pull Europe out of the Slough of Despond. President Roosevelt's essential realism commands that America's interests shall come first. He is, perhaps, the victim of his own success. His vigorous tackling of America's internal problems have been followed by remarkable results, so much so that fear has largely been dispelled, the mood which permitted Mr. Roosevelt to handle things in his own way is passing and with the restoration of confidence has come a growing jealousy in Congress over its prerogatives. He has already had several disputes with the Senate, had more or less to compel them to adjourn, and more clashes are looming. The most significant item of news from the United States in recent weeks was the information that the President had decided not to ask Congress for special powers to deal with the tariff problem. This means that any agreement reached by the American delegation at the Conference will have to be ratified by the Senate, which means again that other delegations at the Conference will at all times be considering the tariff problem with the idea in their mind that anything they do may be brought to naught at Washington. How, in these circumstances, can the broad general agreements which are essential be produced? Equally, it is difficult to see how any progress can be made towards a settlement of the monetary problems, which change from day to day, with wild fluctuations of currencies. It is difficult to see what is likely to be achieved by an agreement for the stabilisation of the pound in terms of gold if the dollar is to be allowed to run loose. It will do nothing to assist British commercial interests. Politically, it will satisfy French feeling. But it will achieve nothing in the economic sphere that can be considered an asset. General abandonment of the gold standard is likely to do far more good. If there is to be inflation, in other words, let it be general. The world seems to require a little more chaos to bring it to its senses.

Machines and Jobs

In retrospect, it does seem that after all the technocrats accomplished one result of positive value: their writings and their interviews did make clear the imperative need for accurate information on technological unemployment. One of the first thorough and calmly reasoned presentations of this subject was made about two years ago by Prof. Paul H. Douglas in his book, "The Problem of Unemployment." Now, with the publication of Dr. Elizabeth F. Baker's "Displacement of Men by Machines," there is made available a factual analysis of the impact of machines on men in a single major industry, commercial printing. This study, while not pretending to constitute the whole key to the problem of technological unemployment in all industry, offers important new material on the subject, upsets a number of generally accepted theories and establishes a significant criterion for future research. The technocrats talked glibly of the staggering rate of displacement of men by machines and of a new social and economic scheme that would derive from their "energy surveys." Dr. Baker found that it was impossible, in the printing industry, to make an "energy survey" possessed of any remotely reasonable accuracy. Probably the printing industry is not unique in presenting considerations that too hopelessly complicate the determination of individual production in terms of mechanical energy. It may well be that the chief merit of this study is to be found in its emphasis on the social values concerned in the problem of technological unemployment. Certainly the Governments, now setting into operation powerful forces designed to effect economic recovery, should consider the need for examination on a national scale of industries in which displacement of labour by machines is most likely to occur, for standards aiming at gradual introduction of technological improvements, for establishment of national employment agencies, and for revamping vocational education, to anticipate the effects of invention.

MRS. PEARL BUCK ON MISSIONS

By E. L. ALLEN.

When in our part of the world the conversation turns either on book or on China, the name of Mrs. Pearl Buck is certain to be mentioned or her inimitable sketches of Chinese life. She has opened the eyes of many to the pathos and tragedy of Chinese village life, to the dumb sorrow of China's working women and the life of hard toil to which her land condemns the men, though she gives them in return a great love for the "good earth." It is to be hoped that she has persuaded many in Europe and America that there is another China than that which breeds—in imagination—the stealthy, callous villain of 'talkie' and 'shocker'.

Probably most of those who knew Mrs. Buck as an author did not think of her as also a missionary till they had learned that there was a likelihood of her ceasing to be such. One cannot but feel that the acceptance of her resignation has done a great deal more harm than good. It will save a certain number of subscriptions which might otherwise have been withdrawn, but the cause will be injured for a long time to come by the fact that there is no room in it for one so large-hearted and so genuinely devoted to the Chinese people.

AN APOLOGIA.

So it is with no small degree of interest that one takes up the little book which serves as her apology, "Is There a Case For Foreign Missions?" To judge from the contents, it was written before her resignation, for she writes as one who is still a missionary. Out here, we all have our opinions on the subject with which she deals. Our opinions may not be of much value, but hers is certainly worth having. Many will read the book and quarrel with it, a few will agree, but quite a number, while admiring her candour and sincerity, will arrive at a similar conclusion though not quite the same one.

Mrs. Buck writes in a manner that is the reverse of dogmatic. She writes as one for whom the fires of hell have long since died out, and for whom the lights of heaven flicker at times somewhat uncertainly. She passes in review the reasons that have been given in the past for foreign missions, and finds them all unsatisfactory. As a matter of winning converts to a religion or adding members to a Church, the thing is simply not worth doing, she feels. "I will not give my life to founding self-supporting churches. If people want to have organisation, let them, but I will not be guilty of telling anyone who seeks Christ truly. But you must join the Church, you know. How do I know Christ is only in the Church? He may be there or He may not be. It depends altogether on whether in that Church those groups of people live in His way and have His spirit or not. If they do not live and behave as He did, He is not there. I will neither persuade people to join churches nor seek to prevent them."

ADVICE TO MISSIONARIES.

She feels the shame of the position in the so-called Christian countries to-day. The present situation of being able to go and preach to other peoples what we do not practise is intolerable to persons of any sensitivity. All the same, she feels that however much has to be given up something remains which is supremely worth while. Even if Christ should turn out one day to be only a beautiful dream of human goodness, it is a dream to know which is gain and not to know which is a great loss. "Would I, even if I were a Buddhist, be willing to see Christ die out altogether from the hearts of men? Would I be willing to have men forget that He ever lived, forget His words, imperfectly as they are given to us? Wherever He has gone, in spite of all our mistakes and disloyalties, He has made a difference. In nations where the figure of Christ has been perceived, however dimly, I find something I do not find elsewhere. To some degree the sick are cared for, the weak and defective are housed and cared for with tenderness, women are more honoured, people do struggle somewhat for goodness; somehow the poor are helped a little." As she looks into the future, Mrs. Buck pleads for a new ideal of missions, an ideal that is of value for everybody who comes out East. She asks for those who will be less concerned with what they have to teach than with what they may learn, whose first aim will be to get to know the men and women among whom they live, and who will shift the emphasis from preaching to a people to sharing a life with them, the best life we know.

BUTTERFLIES FLY THE ATLANTIC

By H. VINCENT BROME.

Occasionally, the English Channel presents a most wonderful sight. Out of the distance comes curling a long, straggling column of unearthly beauty, like some ragged rainbow fallen from the skies. There are tons of thousands of fragments in this rainbow, and each fragment is a butterfly. Migration from the Boulogne coast has begun and the annual invasion from other lands will follow shortly.

Hordes of Clouded Yellows leave the French coast in the early morning and head for Brighton, Folkestone and Dover. Arriving in the late afternoon, they settle in their thousands on secluded stretches of the cliff, always keeping together. Chances crossings must have their terrors for creatures so frail, but it seems almost incredible that they should pit their leisured loveliness against the might of the Atlantic. Yet they do. And with success.

SUNDAY GAMES WANTED

PUBLIC OPINION IN FAVOUR

"BLUE LAWS"

New York. The tide of public opinion in U.S.A. appears to be turning in favour of Sunday amusements, declares Dr. Steiner, professor of sociology in "Americans at Play," one of the monographs sponsored by the Research Committee on Social Trends appointed by former President Hoover. Dr. Steiner observed that failure to suppress Sunday amusements has never been more widespread than at present.

"Legislation restricting both work and play on the Sabbath became quite general during Colonial times and still appears in various forms in the legal codes of most States. While legislation of this kind, in so far as it applies to sports and amusements, is generally regarded as obsolete, these 'blue laws' have not been widely repealed and in some sections of the country, notably in the Eastern and Southern States, the local governments undertake more or less vigorously to bring about their enforcement.

SUPPRESSION FAILS.

"In the cities of largest size, recreation parks and playgrounds and amusement places generally operate freely the entire week, but in many of the smaller cities and towns Sunday closing of such places is required.

"In some cities the growing demand for Sunday amusements has led to the enactment of more liberal legislation. Much more frequently the same purpose is achieved through lax enforcement of Sunday laws allowed to remain on the statute books.

"The failure of law enforcement agencies to suppress Sunday amusements has never been more widespread than at the present time and seems to indicate a definite turning of the tide of public opinion away from the earlier ideas of Sunday observance."—Reuter.

NAVAL PROMOTIONS

TWO LOCAL OFFICERS ON LATEST LIST

In the latest list of Admiralty promotions are the names of Paymaster Lieutenant Commander F. R. Porter, the Commander's Secretary and Paymaster Lieutenant Commander E. M. Tetley, of H.M.S. Tamar. Both officers have been promoted to the rank of Paymaster Commander.

His Excellency the Governor has recognized, provisionally and pending instructions from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, Mr. N. da Costa as Vice-Consul for Brazil in Hongkong.

AT WIMBLEDON

began to plaster Lee with a succession of shots from all angles and parts of the court which the Englishman found extremely difficult to counter.

Nevertheless, Stofen only just scraped through with the third set, and he had just as narrow a margin to allow in the fourth. It was only after annexing this vital set that the American took command of the game, and from that stage he was unstoppable.

SATOH'S VICTORY.

Jiro Satoh, pride of Japan, beat Stefani in a normal game, the match going to the standard four sets, Satoh easing up after establishing a clear lead with the first two sets, and then returning to polish off the match.

He was the Italian's master, employing his best ground strokes and thriving on a net campaign in the course of which he displayed delightful mobility.

Stefani tried hard to find a weakness in the Japanese, but found Satoh as steady as a rock on the baseline and wonderfully agile at the net.

MIXED DOUBLES.

Miss Barbara Foltham, who earlier this week played so well against Mme. Mathieu, had the satisfaction of figuring prominently in a great mixed doubles victory.

Partnering Aoki, the Japanese, she helped to beat Vivian McGrath and Mrs. Covell in a three set match.

Mrs. Willis Moody, Mlle. Valerio and Mlle. Payot were the first to find their way into the quarter finals of the women's singles.

Their successes saw the elimination of an English girl, together with French and German competitors.

Mrs. Willis Moody overcame Mlle. Honroth, without of course, losing a set, and only conceding three games.

Mlle. Valerio's win against Fraulien Horn was very meritorious and it was not surprising to see Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall losing to Mlle. Payot, the Switzerland champion and a ranked Wimbledon contestant.

The day's results, as cabled by Reuter were:

MEN'S SINGLES.

FOURTH ROUND.

R. Menzel (Czecho-Slovakia) beat R. Lytleton Rogers (Ireland) 6-1, 6-1, 12-10.

J. L. Stofen (U.S.A.) beat H.G.N. Lee (Japan) 7-5, 7-5, 7-5, 6-3.

Mlle. Valerio (France) beat Fr. Horn (Germany) 6-3, 8-6.

Mlle. Payot (Switzerland) beat Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall (Britain) 8-6, 5-7, 7-5.

WOMEN'S SINGLES.

FOURTH ROUND.

Mrs. H. Willis Moody (U.S.A.) beat Mlle. Honroth (France) 6-3, 6-0.

Mlle. Valerio (Italy) beat Fr. Horn (Germany) 6-3, 8-6.

Mlle. Payot (Switzerland) beat Mrs. Fearnley Whittingstall (Britain) 8-6, 5-7, 7-5.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

SECOND ROUND.

Aoki and Tuckett beat Bryans and Leader 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 6-3.

MIXED DOUBLES.

FIRST ROUND.

Billington and Miss Knapp beat C.R.D. Tuckey and Miss Scriven 6-4, 6-2.

SECOND ROUND.

Ho and Miss Hardwick beat Booth and Miss Wynne 13-11, 6-4.

Aoki and Miss B. Feltham beat V. McGrath and Mrs. Scovell 6-1, 3-6, 8-6.

His Excellency the Governor has approved the promotion of Lieutenant A.H. Potts to the rank of Captain in the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps.

STATE CONTROLLED SCHOOLS

Nationalism Instituted In Albania

Tirana.

All schools in Albania are to come under the control of the State, and the Government is empowered to establish a press censorship whenever it sees fit, under amendments to the constitution passed by parliament and just promulgated by King Zog.

Any private schools that do not fall in with the new measure will have to close at the end of the current school year. Four Italian industrial schools for boys have already been taken over by the State.

The modification in the constitution will affect about 72 private schools, including a number run by American bodies, out of a total of nearly 600 schools.

A number of foreign schools have long been established in the country and, under the Ottoman Empire, they were the only schools allowed to teach Albanian from 1860 until just before the Great War. An effective educational system was not established by the Albanian Government until 1921.—Reuter.

DRAMA OF 100 YEARS AGO

DISCOVERY OF BUST OF ROMAN EMPEROR

Naples.

The discovery of a life-sized head of a Roman emperor in marble in the course of new excavations on the site of the ancient city of Paestum, near Naples, has brought to light a curious drama of many hundreds of years ago.

The head is that of the Emperor Tiberius, who was very unpopular in Paestum because he deprived the city of several ancient privileges, including that of coining their own currency.

But there is no trace of the body of the statue, and the head appears to have been carefully buried below the level of the old city. It is believed that after Tiberius' death the statue was overthrown in a civic riot and that followers of the old emperor picked up the head and devotedly buried it in order to preserve it.

The head is in excellent condition and is of exquisite workmanship. It depicts the emperor with a sardonic smile on his face.—Reuter.

"PUMPED" BACK TO LIFE

POLICE USE NEW APPARATUS

London.

A woman has been "pumped" back to life by Thames police using apparatus recently supplied to them for the first time.

The woman, who had fallen into the river, showed no sign of life when ordinary methods of artificial respiration were applied, but she was soon breathing normally when carbon-dioxide gas was administered by means of the new "gun."

This "gun," which is only some nine inches high, replaces cylinders weighing a hundredweight. A six-inch "cartridge" (rather like those used in soda-water syphons) of compressed carbon-dioxide gas, with or without oxygen, is contained in a heavy plated cylinder pierced by a screw handle.

Which will also control the flow of gas. The gas is applied to the nostrils by a small rubber mask, and immediately causes respiration action of the lungs.—Reuter.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF

O GOD! O GOD! HOW WEARY, STALE, FLAT AND UNPROFITABLE SEEM TO ME ALL THE USES OF THIS WORLD.—Shakespeare.

The Rev. J. N. Lewis Bryan, the Senior Chaplain to the Forces will say a few words at the next meeting, on Tuesday, of the Rotary Club of Hongkong.

The Wing On Company, Limited, announce that as from to-day, business hours will be as follows: week-days, 9 a.m. to 8 p.m., Sundays, 12 noon to 8 p.m.

Ng Ngau, was charged before Mr. Schofield this morning, with a breach of the deportation order. Inspector Vincent applied for committal to Sessions, and the hearing was fixed for July 5 at noon. In the case of Chan Pui, another banished, Inspector Vincent asked for one week's remand which was granted.

The Sincere Co., Ltd., announce that from to-day, their main store will close daily at 8 p.m. instead of 8.30 p.m. as hitherto.

We regret that owing to inadvertence, the wedding of Dr. Kuo Han and Miss Ming Tong was announced yesterday as having already taken place. The ceremony is to be performed this afternoon at 3 p.m. at the Catholic Cathedral.

Caught in Des Voeux Road West after attempting to run away with a Dairy Farm bottle of milk from a delivery basket, an unemployed Chinese was brought before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning. Defendant admitted the charge and said he stole because he was hungry. A remand for 48 hours for medical examination was granted, defendant stating he had an injured side.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

YESTERDAY'S MARKET STEADY

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done 3,670,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports:—After an irregular and dull session, the market advanced from one to four points with the most active trading in strength in rails and favourable carloadings. For the week ending June 24th carloadings were reported at 604,608, an increase of 10,737 from the preceding week which caused total June sales of stocks to reach a new high for any rising market history and which exceeded only October 1929. Unfavourable crop comments rallied wheat. The Chicago Board of Trade will be closed until Wednesday. It is reported that sales of stock for the month of June amounted to 125,619,530 shares. Cable received during our Night Service at 11.12 p.m. from S.C. and F. New York.

The list is showing a good tone despite nervousness over the money stabilization prospects. Temporary irregularity is likely to be followed by renewed upturn led by rails and specialties. Wheat: Cables were heavy and more rain reported in the spring wheat belt which suggests a lower market. Cotton: Opened steady without full response to decline in Liverpool. There was some trade buying but not aggressive or in volume. Speculative operations were small pending curtailment and stabilization developments. Cable received from Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, New York. The market developed considerable strength in selling. Rails and equipments are dried up. Expectations to move higher. Wheat: expected to be easier on sterling and rains in the spring wheat belt, but recovered on strong buying and belief that the relief arrived too late. Cotton: News advices suggesting check upon wide exchange fluctuations rather than fixed currency. Stabilization considered by the Administration had a strengthening effect after a heavy general selling which was well absorbed. Buying on reaction, however, was light.

IF THE MOON WAS 500 MILES AWAY

WHAT IT WOULD LOOK LIKE

PEAKS, CRATERS AND CRACKS

I am writing this within 500 miles of the moon. A building on the moon the size of St. Paul's would just be visible as a speck, and Oxford-street or Broadway as a faint line.

From a distance of nearly a quarter of a million miles, I have been brought to this astonishing proximity by one of the largest telescopes in this country, the 20-inch reflector of Dr. W. H. Stevenson in his garden at Norwood, writes a London Morning Post Special Correspondent.

Mountains and craters, cracks and a rocky precipice stand out in the sun's shadow like a miniature relief map. There is no doubt that no man could live there, even if the temperature and atmosphere were correct. It is a barren and tumultuous wilderness.

To begin my lunar tour the instrument was first turned to the crater of Plato, looking like Wembley Stadium from the air, actually the size of a fair-sized English county. On the left were a row of giant peaks, their shadows cast by the sun like a row of cathedral spires across the arid and lava-filled plain.

On the far side of the plain sunrise was lighting the peaks, and the slight movement of the air, perhaps forty thousand feet above the earth, brought the illusion of running fire.

500FT. CLIFF.

A little south of the moon's centre lies a straight cliff of rocks, one of the most surprising features of its surface which the telescope can show. It is only 500 feet high, but the shadow effect is sufficient to show beyond doubt that it is no mere crack, and that the high ground is to the left and the low plain to the right.

Then to the Apennines, a great chain of mountains some 400 miles long, and rising to a height of 12,000 feet. Seen directly from above and with less help from shadows, they are suggestive of some of the vertical photographs of the Everest range.

Elsewhere are odd isolated mountains which look as if they had come there by accident—for all the world as if some giant plasterer had taken his nearly empty trowel and shaken the remains over the surface of the

Newly discovered! a priceless safeguard to teeth

—an entirely new cleansing and polishing material has been developed that is twice as soft as polishing materials commonly used in tooth pastes. Gives teeth a higher polish, brighter lustre—FILM stains disappear completely.

THE Pepsodent Laboratories announce a revolutionary discovery—a new cleansing and polishing material for tooth paste. For six months Pepsodent Tooth Paste has contained this remarkable new material. It possesses three exclusive virtues:

1. It stands unexcelled in removing dull, destructive FILM.
2. Its texture is invisibly fine. Thus, it imparts a higher polish to enamel—a brilliant glaze or lustre.
3. It is safe because it is soft—yes, twice as soft—as polishing materials in common use.

Yet in taste and appearance Pepsodent is still the Pepsodent you have always known. In results and safety it is new—brand new.

Pepsodent—special FILM-removing tooth paste

Removing FILM is, and always will be, Pepsodent's chief duty. Today's Pepsodent performs that duty better than ever before. Its new cleansing and polishing material brings a change in teeth's appearance within a few days' time.

Get a tube of Pepsodent today. See how quickly and safely it rids your teeth of decay-producing film—how it polishes them to sparkling brilliance.

moon.

In one place—among the Alps of the astronomers—is a great furrow which is supposed to have been caused by the slanting arrival of a gigantic meteorite. Elsewhere are little cracks, only half a mile across, but clearly visible.

2,000 MILES AN HOUR.

Next the telescope was turned to the dark side of the moon, only faintly luminous in the half-light of the earth, but with its edge sharply defined. A little to the right of the moon, by good fortune, was a star, invisible to the naked eye but a brilliant spot of light in the telescope. Dr. Steavenson explained that within a few minutes I should see an "occultation," the passage of the moon over a star.

Nearer and nearer the moon swept and in the eyepiece one had a vivid impression of its rush through space at more than two thousand miles an hour. Then in an instant, as if its light had been blown out, the star disappeared—proof this, that the moon has no atmosphere to cause slow fading.

I called out the moment to Dr. Steavenson, who recorded the precise second of the disappearance on his Greenwich-time watch. Such timings of celestial rendezvous give new reckonings of the moon's position.

Then to keep my sense of proportion, Dr. Steavenson took me for a further trip, moving deeper and deeper into space. First Jupiter, encircled by brown-pink lands and with three of his satellites shining brightly to one side; then Mars, ruddy and with the white snow-caps of its north pole beginning to grow again after its mid-summer in April; and finally outwards to the stars.

A red "kiant" star, as red as a glowing cigarette end and as definitely coloured as any object in the heavens, but with a surface temperature of a mere three thousand degrees; a bright single star seven thousand degrees hotter; a star that was really two, which a hundred years ago had been in a straight line and, slowly revolving, would again be indistinguishable in perhaps a similar period; another double star, of which one was orange and much larger than its twin star's white.

A GROUP OF SUNS.

Finally, at some incalculable distance, a small soap bubble, brightest at its edges, which Dr.

Steavenson explained was a faintly luminous shell of gas, countless millions of miles across; and, what in a smaller telescope would have looked much the same, a group of perhaps thirty or forty giant suns, a universe on its own but still within our system of stars, like a swarm of fireflies miraculously stilled.

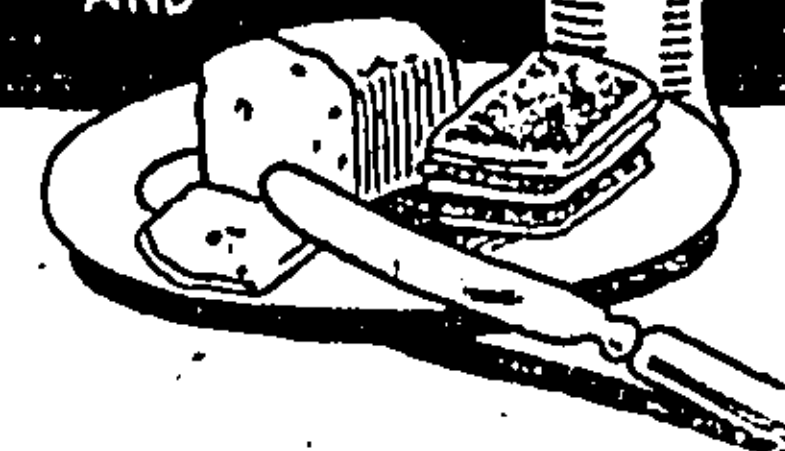

We came back to earth, and Dr. Steavenson moved the telescope slightly out of focus to show the troubles which our air brings to astronomers. The air in the tube looked like what Dr. Steavenson described as "worms and feathered fowls," weird shapes slowly moving in response to air currents caused by the cooling of the instrument in the night air; and superimposed on this movement was a rapid flicker, shared by all astronomers, caused by great air currents high in the earth's atmosphere.

My evening was over, and Dr. Steavenson turned to his night's work of observation.

milk

BABY'S health may be impaired by constant change of diet. Using milks of unknown origin amounts to that. They differ in constitution according to their source and thus tend to cause digestive disturbance.

You can be sure of giving baby the best and freshest Devonshire milk by giving him "Ambrosia"—milk from healthy Devonshire herds—milk purified and dried in Devonshire dairies as soon as it comes from the meadow.

"Ambrosia" contains all the important vitamins, it is many times purer and more easily digested than Grade "A" milk—yet costs less. Hospitals, Clinics and Doctors prescribe "Ambrosia," it is the safest and most delicious milk for Baby, Mother and every nursing purpose.

DRAMATIC INCIDENTS IN COUNTY CRICKET

KENT SET 388 TO WIN

AND SCORE 363 FREEMAN'S 100 WICKETS

YORKSHIRE LOSE

London, June 30.

Cricket was full of dramatic and interesting incident during the past three days. Here are the high spots.

First defeat of season for Yorkshire. Freeman, the Kent spin bowler, the first to take 100 wickets.

Kent, set with 388 to win, score 363 in the fourth innings against Somerset.

Notts, declaring twice, lose on first innings to Gloucester. Glamorgan, facing a first innings score of 454-6 declared by Leicester, reply with 443.

Kent's match against Somerset, which resulted in defeat for the Hop county by 24 runs, was one of the most exciting, and productive of some of the best cricket, of the season to date.

But even better was to follow. Somerset scoring 215 against Kent's 105, the latter had to face the heavy task of scoring 388 to win. Somerset scored quite freely in their second knock compiling 277 for 8 before declaring.

100TH WICKET.

The match had already provided plenty of incident, "Tich" Freeman, the Kent goolgy bowler, taking 7 for 61 in Somerset's first innings to record his 100th wicket and earning the distinction of being the first bowler to accomplish it this summer.

But even better was to follow. Kent started their task in buoyant fashion and Frank Woolley got going for the first time this season.

Before he left he had hit the Somerset attack to all parts of the ground to score 198, his initial three-figure innings in the current county championship. He gave a dazzling display of batting and put Kent in such a position that victory was more than possible.

A fascinating and dramatic duel between the Somerset bowlers and the later Kent batsmen culminated in the bowlers winning the day and Kent failed by 24 runs to score the necessary 388.

YORKSHIRE TAKE COUNT.

On top of this came Yorkshire's defeat at the hands of Sussex, marking the first time this season the champions have conceded full points.

A. P. FREEMAN, first bowler to take 100 wickets this season.

Yorkshire, from the time Sussex collared their attack, were fighting a losing battle and Sussex eventually won by ten wickets.

James Langridge, whose batting form this year has been the feature of county cricket, claimed another century, helping himself to 159 not out.

Only Leyland could withstand the Sussex trundlers, and his 50 in Yorkshire's first innings was, under the circumstances, one of his finest efforts.

Notts had a peculiar experience. They declared in both innings but could not reach a decisive result and actually lost on the first innings.

After scoring 801 for 9 declared, Notts saw Gloucester rattle up 347. Endeavouring to force the issue, Notts again applied the law, but were again defeated, this time by 100 for 9, but Gloucester

Middlesex (237 and 203-8) beat Essex (252 and 186) by two wickets

Chinese Football Team Makes History

Starts As School Eleven and Then Wins Vancouver Senior Trophy

The story of how a number of Chinese members of a school football team, later formed their own club and progressed in size and talent until this year they carried off the Mainland Football Cup in Vancouver, British Columbia, is related in a recent issue of Sunday Province.

Away back in 1918-19 and 20 the Central School eleven had carried off the public school championship for three consecutive years, and several Chinese players were included in that team. Other boys of Chinese nationality played for different public schools in the city, and as they reached the age for leaving the seat of learning, it was decided to form a football club under the Chinese Students Athletic Association, with the Central School team as the nucleus.

They entered organized football in the season 1921-22 by joining the third division of the Vancouver and District League and since that time have had the usual ups and downs connected with all clubs. For two years they were in the third division, and were then promoted along with St. Saviours to the second division. While members of that section they reached their highest peak of glory, up to that time, by carrying off the Iroquois Cup in 1925-26 after keen competition. On their way to the final they knocked out the Nationals, who won the second division championship that year, Creamos, winners of the Wednesday League, and the strong Hotel Vancouver eleven. They were also awarded the Mayor L. D. Taylor trophy as the most sporting team on and off the field in the city.

MOVED INTO FIRST DIVISION.
As a reward for their success the club was moved up to first division company the next season, and in their first match they handed South Hill, who eventually won the league championship, their only defeat of the season. Then started a downward period because of players gradually leaving the club to enter colleges and universities all over the American continent and in the Orient. No longer among those who formerly assisted the team are men who are now doctors, university graduates, and members of the diplomatic service and foreign offices in China.

With only three of the original players left the team had to be reconstructed by again drawing on the schools and from smaller Chinese teams, but by carefully studying other players and gradually improving their own standard they have at last attained their greatest success by lifting the Mainland Silverware. Several times they have reached semi-finals and finals of cup competitions without success, apart from the times they won the Iroquois trophy, and their latest triumph in all the western Canada is their first.

NOMADS BEAT SIDMOUTH

J. E. RICHARDSON SCORES 82

BIG PARTNERSHIP WITH MACFARLANE
(Our Own Correspondent).

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Message, Ordinance, 1933. Received, July 1, 4.4 a.m.)

Sidmouth, June 30.
Hongkong Nomads brought their official tour to a close today with a decisive win over Sidmouth in a one-day match, scoring 170 for 6 in reply to the home team's 120.

J. E. Richardson and Lieut. Macfarlane were the personalities of the match. In a second wicket partnership which realised over 10 runs, they hit off the Sidmouth aggregate, and for the rest it was just a batting practice.

Sidmouth collapsed sensationally after lunch. Up to that time they had scored 67 for three wickets and looked good enough to amass a total sufficient to prevent Hongkong from winning.

But after the adjournment, they went to pieces, the remaining seven wickets falling for an additional 53 runs.

CAVALIER TREATMENT.
The Nomads, after losing E. J. R. Mitchell when he had scored nine, treated the Sidmouth attack in cavalier fashion, and Richardson and Macfarlane became associated in a prolific partnership. Macfarlane was a trifle unfortunate to lose his wicket when seven short of the half century, but he had already made victory a certainty for the Nomads.

Richardson continued to display great form, and scoring freely on both sides of the wicket, as well as with some neat leg glances and late cuts reached 82 before losing his wicket.

It was Richardson's most entertaining display of the tour, the Civil Service batsman being in his happiest mood.

Donald Anderson surprised everyone by being sent back for a "duck," and after this the Nomads just played out time, with Baker scoring a dozen and Sayer five. Beck was not out with six to his credit.

Chopped Beef and Carrots

GO TO MAKE A REAL GOLFER

There is bad news for golfers of the old brigade. That hearty lunch in the club house—the roast pork and crackling, the apple pie, and the nice bit of Stilton to follow—will be seen no more by those who take their golf seriously.

For Henry Cotton, this year's runner-up in the Dunlop-Southport tournament and the winner of the two previous years, has discovered that golf and gastronomy are bitter enemies.

His diet when training for a tournament consisted of a little chopped underdone beef and chopped carrots.

He had been living by doctor's orders on a diet of fruit and beef extract. A Paris specialist told him to adopt a chopped beef and carrot ration. As a result Cotton claims to feel a hundred per cent fitter.

But the prospect for those who hope to emulate his game is not altogether black.

For many years Cotton has been a strict vegetarian, but now the Paris physician has insisted on his eating meat.

FATSHAN'S RETURN.

SCRATCH CREW TAKEN ON IN CANTON

After being tied up for over a week in Canton on account of the strike of its Chinese crew, the Butterfield and Swire Company's s.s. Fatshan, well-known Hongkong-Canton passenger vessel, returned to Hongkong and is now at anchor at Stonecutters. It is expected that the Fatshan will remain laid up for the present.

A scratch crew was taken on at Canton on Thursday morning for the trip down.

With the removal of the Fatshan from the Canton wharf the s.s. Kinshan of the Steamboat Company will be able to use her berth again.

The last of the B. and S. Shanghai boats to call at Canton was the s.s. Hunan, which left here for Canton on Tuesday and has returned since without discharging its goods. The s.s. Szechuan and s.s. King Yuan of the same company arrived after the s.s. Hunan from Shanghai, but they will not proceed to Canton.

SPORTSMAN TO WED.

MR. A. B. HAMSON AND MISS EDITH M. WOOD

The wedding will take place some time in August between Mr. A. B. Hamson, of Messrs. Wallace Harper and Co., Ltd., residing at 4, Leighton Hill, Hongkong, and Miss Edith May Wood, a teacher at the Diocesan Girls' School, Kowloon.

Mr. Hamson was educated at Turro College, Cornwall, where he was keenly interested in sport, being captain of the College soccer team in 1924 and 1925. Since his return to the Colony in 1925 he has given up football and confined himself to cricket and hockey. At cricket he plays for Craigengower, and he played in the St. Andrew's Munnik hockey team all last season.

BELLIGERENT JAPAN.

QUARRELS WITH MANY NATIONS TO-DAY

Shanghai, June 30.
Japan today is at loggerheads with China, is embroiled in a serious dispute with Russia, is on by no means cordial relations with the United States and is towing her Manchurian policy in general disfavour throughout the greater part of the world.

"It is surprising, therefore, that the time should be considered opportune for fomenting an anti-British campaign in that country." So writes Professor Woodhead in the Shanghai Evening Post today.

"The Japanese Government," he adds, "will of course disclaim any responsibility for this campaign, but even if it has not instigated it—which is extremely unlikely—the strict control which it exercises over the Japanese press in other directions suggests that it is not altogether unwelcome in official circles."—Reuter.

DARLING FOOL

Ivory-tinted face, ever so faintly

sun-touched. Out of this frame her gentian blue eyes glowed.

Things were better these days.

She was in favour at home. Mon-nie was proud of her—they all who knew what these theatricals would lead to.

Kay could see a great producer leaning forward from his seat in the back row, asking eagerly:

"Who is the young lady playing the lead? Marvellous!"

Someone would answer, "Kay

O'Dare."

Or maybe she wouldn't get the lead. Maybe she would distinguish herself in a small part—a maid or something like that.

"Small Town Girl." Startles

Broadway. She could see the headlines. Idly, staring at her reflection in the mirror without really seeing it, Kay dreamed on. Yes, much depended on the outcome of the event.

CINEMA SCREENINGS

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

Renate Muller, the irresistible
"Susie" girl, is making a welcome reappearance in "Marry Me," the latest Gainsborough laugh-hit, which is coming to the King's Theatre to-morrow.
There is every reason to believe, say the sponsors, Ideal Films Ltd., that even the happily-remembered "Sunshine Susie" will be outshone.
Which suggests that the public has a real treat in prospect!

Some imitatively funny business is contributed in the picture by George Robey, who takes the part of a beetle-browed Hungarian farmer.
Aloysius Novak, who comes to town in search of a bride. Aloysius needed a wife in a hurry, and finds an accommodating friend in Herr, Sigrid Bernstein (Harry Green). "Matches made by Bernstein" is that trouced cupid's slogan, and not content with documented details of his clients, he has his own projection theatre, where talking films of eligible—imagine the fun of it!—are screened. In this aspect of his business, he enjoys the assistance of Herr Meyer (Billy Caryll) who makes an ideal and resourceful major domo. It's a role after Billy Caryll's heart! Many of the scenes are not in a gramophone factory, where the processes of recording provide opportunities for putting over the musical interludes most ingeniously. There are some captivating songs, including the "Early Bird" number, and the theme song
"Will Somebody, will somebody Marry Me?" bids fair to out-rival the popularity of that memorable song-hit
"To-day, I Feel So Happy."

"To-day, I Feel So Happy."

"A Lady's Profession"

Allison Skipworth won't tell you how old she is, but she does confess two other facts. She made her stage debut at the age of 22. And she's been on the stage for 32 years.

Experts in higher mathematics may draw their own conclusions as to the age of the veteran character

comediienne, who is featured with Roland Young and Sari Maritza in "A Lady's Profession," now showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Miss Skipworth won movie fame

after decades of stage success when she played the leading role in "Madame Racketeer." She has been featured in five other films since

"Night After Night," "He Learned

About Women," "To-night is Ours,"

"If I Had a Million" and "A Lady's Profession."

"A Lady's Profession" is the story of a couple of titled Britons who suddenly discover that the family pocket-book is quite empty, and set out to refill it by opening a speakeasy in New York. Miss Skipworth and Young, cast as brother and sister, are in those roles. Miss Maritza is cast as Young's daughter.

The Britons, entirely ignorant of American customs, and particularly American underworld customs, involve themselves in numerous amusing scrapes. Their principal difficulties are not with the law, but with the bootleggers who supply them with their stock. The latter, terrified at the thought of joining the headlines

when prohibition is repealed, attempt to force them to buy more liquor than they can sell.

Miss Skipworth, battling quietly with the liquor syndicate, emerges triumphant over the bewildered bootleggers, who can't follow her British tactics at all.

A romance between Miss Maritza and Kent Towner runs throughout the picture.

"The Painted Woman"

Most screen actors' children are familiar in a rather bored way with their parents' film roles. In Irving

Pichel's case, however, his life on the silver sheet is considerable of a mystery to his boys. They can't understand why they aren't permitted to see Daddy's pictures, but the explanation is simple.

"It's pure selfishness," the actor says. "In almost all my screen portrays I am a distinctly no-good ruffian, and I don't want my youngsters to get any false impressions of their father's character. It's hard enough to bring them up anyway."

Pichel's latest "menace" part is that of the scheming South Seas politician, Dunn, in "The Painted Woman," which opens shortly at the King's Theatre. His vengeful ways bring

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

It is seldom that four-card suits are re-bid at contract unless supported by partner. To re-bid a suit once shows at least a five-card suit. To re-bid it in the face of denials from partner should show a six-card suit, or at least a five-card suit that is absolutely solid.

Honours bring about many interesting situations at contract.
For example, in the following hand one West player insisted on playing the hand at spades and, through a neat squeeze play, was able to make his contract. At several tables, however, the contract was three no trump, which was easily made.

♠ 8-5-4-2	♥ 7-3	♦ 7-3	♣ 8-6
♠ 9-7-3	♥ 8-6	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ 8-6	♥ 7-3	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ 5-3	♥ 7-3	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ K-Q-J	♥ 10-9	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ A-4	♥ A-7	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ A-9-7	♥ A-7	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2
♠ K-J-7	♥ A-7	♦ 10-5-2	♣ 10-5-2

The Bidding

At the table where four spades was the final contract the bidding

was as follows:

South bid one club—although,

in the constructive one-over-one system, South should pass with this holding. West doubled, thereby informing his partner that he could handle any response, showing support for at least one of the major and asking partner, if possible, to bid a major suit.

North passed, East bid one diamond, South passed and West bid

one spade.

East responded with one no

trump and West bid three spades.

This persistent bidding and re-bidding of spades in the face of East's denial told East that his partner did not need trump support, therefore East went to four spades, which South doubled.

Here again I believe that South made a mistake, as the hand is not strong enough for a double.

The Play

North opened the five of clubs, which South won with the ace and returned a club, West winning.

The nine of spades was played.

South winning with the ace and returning another club, which

North trumped.

The declarer had already lost three tricks and it looked as though he must lose a heart or a diamond.

North returned the jack of hearts, a small heart was played from dummy—and declarer won with the ace and then took four rounds of trump, discarding a heart and two diamonds from dummy. South dropped a club, two hearts and a diamond.

A small diamond was then won in dummy with the king, and the queen of clubs squeezed South.

A heart discard would make dummy's queen good, while a diamond discard allows declarer to play the ten from dummy, overtake with the ace and win the last trick with the nine spot.

about plenty of trouble for Spencer

Tracy and Peggy Shannon, the featured players in this exciting tropic romance, and the role is said to be one of his best to date.

William (Stage) Boyd, Murray

Kinnell, Laska Winter, Raul Roulien,

Herbert Mundin and other favourites are in the cast of the picture, which

John Blystone directed for Fox Films.

INDICTMENT OF RUSSIA

GOVERNMENT'S FAILURE

SOVIET REGIME TO END

Paris. An impassioned indictment of the Bolshevik regime is contained in a proclamation issued by the Grand Duke Cyril, head of the Russian Imperial House, who writes:—

"I accuse the present governors of Russia of having, during fifteen years of despotic rule, brought the Russian people nothing but innumerable ills."

"In the course of the years of suffering the people have been reduced to the worst misery and the country has been soaked in blood. 'Industrialisation, reorganisation of the workers' and peasants' lives, which, according to the promises of the Communists, should lead to the well-being of the population, have by their fault resulted in ruin and desolation."

OVERTHROW OF REGIME.
"The communist power in the course of these fatal years has reaped nothing but hatred and malediction."

The Grand Duke Cyril then prophesies an overthrow of the Soviet regime. He continues:

"Discord reigns between those who hold power. Everything proves that the hour of judgment is near. The dawn of a new era which already illumines the future of humanity is throwing its beams over martyred Russia. The Nationalist movement already foretells the near end of Communism."

"Present governors of Russia, it is time to accuse you before the whole world of the crimes of which you are guilty. You alone are responsible for all the sufferings endured by the Russian nation."

"Present governors of Russia, an inexorable fate condemns you,

BUOYANCY ON THE STOCK MARKET

SALES RECORD FOR JUNE

New York, June 30. The Stock Exchange was buoyant to-day although business was limited to 3,670,000 shares. The rumours of the Administration's desire to restrict currency fluctuations had a strengthening effect.

Sales of stock during June totalled 125,019,530 shares, one of the highest recorded in history on a rising market, exceeded only in October, 1929.—Swan, Culbertson and Fritz.

FLUCTUATIONS OF U.S. DOLLAR

Hen-Pecked Husbands Get Together

CLUB FORMED IN JUGOSLAVIA

Belgrade. A club has been formed in Tzaribrod, Yugoslavia, by henpecked husbands in revolt against their slavery.

Fifteen members have sworn to keep to the following rules:—

1. No member shall do any housework whatever, save in the event of his wife's illness.

2. Each member must come out alone, at least once every week, to spend an evening with his friends, male and female.

3. No report of how the evening has been passed shall be given to his wife on his return home.

4. Members shall insist on their wives breakfasting with them and, if possible, shall make the wife prepare the breakfast herself.

When members have succeeded in getting these rules fully accepted, the Club will draw up additional rules which will ensure the gradual widening of members' liberties, until they become completely emancipated.

The membership roll of the club and its meeting-place is to be kept a strict secret, lest enraged wives break it up before it is strong enough to enforce its rules and defend its members.—Reuter.

WEDDING GIFT TO JOURNALIST CRICKETER

Members of the editorial and business staffs of the South China Morning Post and Hongkong Telegraph met yesterday afternoon in the Morning Post's reporters' room for a staff presentation to Mr. P. D. Pereira for the gift of his marriage to Miss Rita Pereira, a beautiful girl from the East.

In making the presentation, Mr. Wylie said that Mr. Pereira had been a member of the Morning Post for three years, and since coming to the colony from Colombo, had made his mark in the newspaper. He had shown great ability as a writer, and had from time to time brightened the columns of the Morning Post by his humorous and witty contributions.

The General Manager of the Morning Post, Mr. W. J. Wylie, and the Managing Editor, Mr. J. H. Wylie, were also present.
